Azamara Club Cruises is, to quote their own words, 'the boutique cruise line of distinction'. Their two 'smaller size' 30,000 ton ships, Azamara Club Journey and Azamara Club Quest offer luxurious, sophisticated, relaxed travel to many unique and fantastic destinations. The feedback from customers is amazing. Here's part of what our own Kim had to say about her cruise in the Med in 2010: 'Azamara Club Journey, at 30,000 tons, carries up to 680 passengers. Being a smaller ship there's a more intimate ambience onboard. The staff were among the friendliest I've ever encountered at sea. The food was outstanding. The complimentary wine with lunch and dinner - different wines each day - truly complemented every meal. The onboard entertainment is different to that on a larger cruise ship. The venue is a 'show lounge' instead of a large theatre. This means the shows are more 'acts' rather than 'shows'. An amazing violinist, Doug Cameron, played a wide variety of music. There was a brilliant guitarist, and the Cruise Director sang and entertained on a couple of nights. The Azamara Orchestra was outstanding, a highlight in itself. What an itinerary. It was really fantastic. That's another advantage of cruising on a smaller vessel. She can squeeze into ports that big ships can't fit into...'
